New Copley Scientific website features virtual brochures

28 November 2007: Nottingham, UK: A completely new company website delivers significantly improved access to Copley Scientific's product information, experience and expertise in inhaler testing, pharmaceutical product analysis and air sampling.

Copley Scientific's brochures have long been recognised as valuable information sources covering all these areas of testing. Virtual brochures on the new website feature flexipage's novel page turning software allowing them to be flicked through on-screen as if held in the hands. In addition all brochures can be downloaded or printed as pdfs.

A database containing product and company news, as well as independently published articles and white papers, provides an easily accessible reference bank. Visit the new website at www.copleyscientific.co.uk
